2. Consensus has Been Reached

All hypothetical Book of Mormon models have one thing in common, they are fashioned after an upright hourglass. Possibly the only thing there is a consensus in Mesoamerican geography.

The Pasion River team felt like this consensus should be taken seriously and used it to identity a possible locations. However, it needed at slight modification since it does not fit any geographic location. The change was to assume the seas could be inland, just like their mother country. The dead sea and the sea of Galilee.
